My condolences too ... Jimmy, Bobby (above) and a few of us other kids shared our lives together over 65+ years ago in a little town of Montrose. I recall playing tin-can ally (our own version of cricket) on the main highway using 3 oil tins (from the local Shell station) on each end as the targets ... playing yards on the street with a minii football ... lots of time on our bikes ... great times we shared are now our treasured memories.

Walz Family, Very sorry to hear that Jimmy Walz has left us. Jimmy took a shine to me in the early 70's, in part because I developed into one of the better foosball players in town, but also because I could keep up with Jimmy's wisecracking (Jimmy was the king); or at least not be buried under it as most guys were. I think Jimmy liked the challenge of both, and we became good friends and occasional teammates at foosball tournaments. Despite Jimmy's public persona — you needed to be a bit gruff to sling beer in the Trail Hotel — those who knew Jimmy best knew he was at heart a big softy. I saw that side of Jimmy many times and was a recipient of Jimmy's loving generosity more than once. Jimmy was a special character for sure, and my life was enriched by knowing him. Speed on, Jimmy!

My sincere condolences to Eleanor and the Walz family. Wally was my first bootlegger...lol. Then a few years later we became great rivalries playing in the foosball tournaments where we shared a "few" beers in the Trail Hotel. And the car stuff we all shared. Great memories of a great guy.
